APPENDIX TERMS OF DISTRIBUTION AND PRESERVATION OF THE UdL's INSTITUTIONAL REPOSITORY

The UdL's Open Repository collects, manages, preserves and distributes digital open-access publications resulting from the academic and research activity of the UdL, institutional publications and other materials of the university community (<http://repositori.udl.cat>).

Though the works deposited in the UdL's Open Repository are published under Creative Commons licence, the original authors of the works can market them freely in accordance with the law, as the ownership of the moral and exploitation rights to the work remains and will remain with the author.

The University of Lleida reserves the right to withdraw a work from public whenever it sees fit for justified reasons: for example, if a third party makes a claim to any rights over all or part of the work and the author is unable to guarantee the peaceful exercise of the rights they have transferred to the University. The author and the University agree to notify each other of the existence of any third party claim related to the work.

If an error is detected in the work, it will be returned to the author.

The University of Lleida will make the work available to its users only in the conditions laid down in the distribution licence chosen by the author, but does not guarantee, or assume any responsibility for, the subsequent use that is made of the final project.

The University of Lleida agrees to preserve all works deposited in the repository in accordance with the Institutional Open Access Policy of the University of Lleida (UdL) approved by the Governing Council on 30 May 2012, agreement 124/2012 (<http://hdl.handle.net/10459.1/45590>)
