Information for mobility students

Languages of Catalonia

The official languages in Catalonia are Catalan, Spanish (Castilian) and Occitan (Aranese). Catalan is also spoken in Valencia (Valencian), the Balearic Islands, the eastern areas of Aragon, the Principality of Andorra, the Department of Pyrénées Orientales in France and the Sardinian city of Alghero. Spanish is one of the most widely spoken languages in the world, and Occitan is spoken in the Aran Valley as well as in southern France. All three belong to the Romance languages family.

Catalan is widely used in public life, the mass media, trade and business. It is one of the group of western neo-Latin languages, together with Spanish, Portuguese and French and should not present much difficulty to anyone who speaks either of those languages, or any other Romance language for that matter. Bear in mind also that the Catalan-speaking population is bilingual and understands and speaks Spanish. In general, someone who can speak Spanish will also be able to understand Catalan within a short time. So a student who spends several months in Lleida can improve Spanish and at the same time, learn some Catalan.

Languages at the University of Lleida

Catalan, Spanish and English are the three working languages at the University of Lleida. The language that is most commonly used at the University of Lleida is Catalan. Lectures may be taught in Catalan or Spanish, depending on the teacher who must not change the language once the course has already begun. The language of the instruction for each course is specified in the "Syllabus and course guides section" of each degree [/sites/universitat-lleida/ca/en/studies/]. Nevertheless, if students and professors share the knowledge of a not planned language, they can agree to use it in their academic relation outside the classroom (mentorships, assignments, exams, etc.). The University of Lleida helps students with their linguistic integration into the university community.
